

Orange County Partnership awards

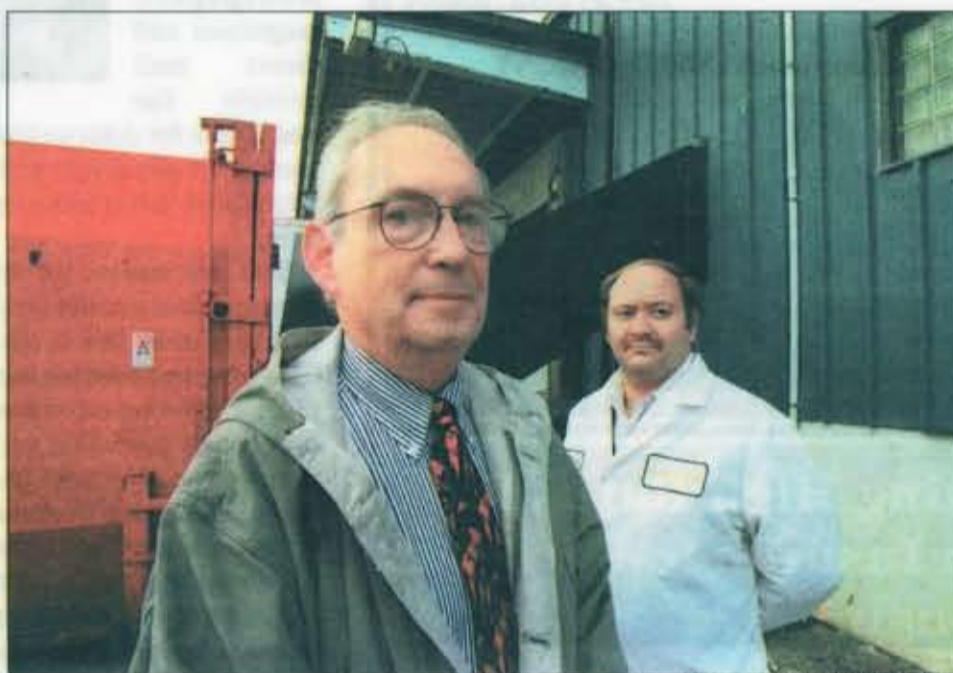

The Orange County Partnership this month will honor the winners of its 1995 Community/Environmental Awards. IBM's ISSC facility at Sterling Forest won the Energy Efficiency Award for an energy audit of its buildings and systems, done at Orange & Rockland Utilities' suggestion. Carl J. DiGregorio (right), the program manager, holds plans for a turbine control system for the generators visible behind him. The company saved money through new motors and lighting rebate programs.

PHOTOGRAPHY: DOMINICK FIORILLE

PHOTOGRAPHY: FILE

PHOTOGRAPHY: CHRIS RAMIREZ

David DeWilde (far left) won the Corporate Executive/Community Involvement Award. DeWilde, president of Clemson Brothers in Middletown, is past chairman of a host of groups and is involved with dozens of quality-of-life organizations in the Hudson Valley.

PHOTOGRAPHY: JEFF GOULDING

Kolmar Laboratories in Port Jervis (above) is being recognized for its Innovative Recycling Efforts. Bob Matuszewski, left, the environmental compliance manager, and Dane Wagner, the building manager, stand in front of a "fibrous material compactor" installed there. The compactor has sharply reduced the amount of waste that goes into a landfill. Kolmar was also honored for a sludge dryer that reclaims cosmetic waste waters to form a solid cake.

Masterwork Kitchens (left) in the Westgate Goshen Office Park won the Land Use Award. Owner and park developer Joe Matta (left) stands with landscape architects Chris DeHaan, Steven Esposito, and Jeff DeGraw. It's the first of several buildings planned for the site.